A Little Boy Thief.

Saturday Mr. Fritz, who lives on Eighteenth street at Alley F, informed the police that a purse containing $2.50 and a certificate of deposit for $202 had been stolen from his house. Two men were suspected, but yesterday a small boy living in the vicinity confessed that he was the thief. The pocketbook and certificate of deposit were restored, and the parents of the boy agreed to restore the $2.50.

He Plead not Guilty.

John Ayer, the fellow who escaped from jail about five years ago and who returned and gave himself up to Joe McConaughy at Bridgeport last week, was arraigned in the common pleas court Saturday on a charge of burglary and plead not guilty. Major Petty, of Barnesville, was assigned as counsel to defend him, Ayer stating to the court that he had no money.

Sent to Pittsburgh.

The body of George Marks, which was found in the river near Sunfish yesterday a week ago, and was first thought to be that of D. M. Carey, was shipped to Pittsburgh Saturday evening by Peter J. Altmeyer, the South Side undertaker. Marks' life was insured for $1,500. He was last seen in Fulton, in March, where he left the house of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Heller, to take a train for Findlay, O. At that time he had a watch and ring and a sum of money with him. Nothing of value was found on the body.

Transfers Recorded.

In the case of Sarah I. Bingell v. Moses C. Good, administrator, et al., James P. Rogers was appointed trustee.

In the case of R. S. Kincheloe v. the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, in assumpsit, the demurrer to the declaration was overruled and the case continued.

This Evening's Concert.

The song recital at the Odd Fellows' hall this evening is a very attractive event. Madame Rolla will sing twelve selections, a rare feast for her to afford her admirers, and they are so varied as to please persons of any taste. She will be assisted by another Wheeling favorite, Miss Anna Lang, who will render several harp solos. The charin of Miss Lang's harp playing is well known. She is a graduate of the harp school at Mt. de Chantal, and reflects much credit on that institution. Madame Rolla will doubtless be greeted by an audience which will pack the commodious new hall.

SLAIN WITH A HATCHET.

Jessie Hill Brutally Assaulted by her Divorced Husband,

WHO CHOPS HER HEAD SAVAGELY.

She was Still alive last Evening, but Cannot Recover—The Murderer sent to Jail at Woodsfield, the Crime having been Committed at Clarington—A Deliberate and Fiendish Uxoricide—The Parties from Wheeling.

One of the most brutal murderous assaults ever chronicled in this vicinity, and one in which premeditation is apparent from all the facts, occurred at Clarington Saturday, the assailant being Charles Hill, a Wheeling cigar-maker, and the victim of his brutal blows his divorced wife, Mrs. Jessie Hill. She was decaying there by a false telegram, and the assassin lay in wait with a hatchet, with which he chopped her head so terribly that there is not the slightest hope for her recovery.

The woman secured a divorce from Hill not long ago. They were the parents of one child, a little girl named Laura, and Mrs. Hill had two little sons by a former husband, William Barlow, a splendid man who left her a widow several years ago.

All three of her children were at the home of the father of her second husband, not far from Clarington, he and his wife desiring to have them, and as they were poor people, Mrs. Hill paid them for the board and care of the little ones.

Mrs. Hill, after she separated from her husband, boarded with Ed. Dennis and wife, at the Rino house. Some time ago she went away from town, but came back, and brought her two little boys with her. Her father-in-law came up and brought their little sister to see them, and at his solicitation he was allowed to take all three home. The boys had been at an orphan's home at Woodsfield, Ohio.

A DECOY TELEGRAM.
Mrs. Hill boarded with Mr. and Mrs. Dennis, at 1027 Market street, since her return. She was a skilled seamstress, and worked for C. Neuman till lately, when she went to work for C. Aul. She is highly spoken of by all who knew her, while Hill is generally pronounced a dissolute and worthless character.

Some time ago Hill called at Dennis's and wanted to see Jessie. She declined to see him, saying he would kill her, and he was sent away.

On Saturday Mrs. Hill received a telegram purporting to be from her late husband's father, saying Laura was very ill, not expected to live, and asking her to go down; it added, also, "C. is not at home."

When Mr. Dennis saw this, he suggested that it might be a trick, and cautioned Mrs. Hill to telegraph back and confirm it before acting, but she cried and said she must go, and that if she delayed she might never see her little girl again. Her friends finally ceased to caution her, seeing their suspicions only distressed her, and she went down on the Ohio River train, not stopping even to pack up any of her things, but leaving all her clothing but what she wore at her boarding house.

The next that was heard by her Wheeling friends was that she had been fatally injured by the man against whom they had warned her.

A FIENDISH DEED.

At Clarington the only ferry is a skill. The divorced husband, with murder in his heart, lay in wait on the Ohio side, concealed from view, but where he could see every movement of the woman's. He saw her step into the skill, and stealthily approaching, waited until the boat touched the shore, and then springing from his hiding place, he rushed to her and began striking her blow after blow with the sharp blade of a hatchet which he had concealed under his coat.

Five gashes were cut in her head, four of them the full width of the blade. One cut exposed the brain, and three other cut the skull.

The injured woman was borne unconscious to Dr. Habermehl's office, but as he was in the country she had to wait some time for his attention. He did what he could for her, but said she had not more than one chance in a hundred to recover. She was removed to the Baldwin hotel, and her sister having been notified of the affair, went down from Bellaire, where she lives, to nurse her.

Hill was arrested and lodged in the lockup. He was overpowered with difficulty. There were many threats of lynching, but he was allowed to live.

SHE CANNOT LIVE.

A special telegram to the INTELLIGENCER from Clarington, received last evening, says:

"L. N. Timmons, marshal, and John J. Mallory, guard, started with Charles Hill to Woodsfield to the Monroe county jail at 7:30 a. m."

"Mrs. Jessie Hill is resting easy as anyone could in her condition, but the doctor says there is not a shadow of a chance for her recovery."

A telegram came from the injured woman's sister to Mrs. Dennis yesterday, asking her to come down at once and bring some articles of clothing for Mrs. Hill. Mrs. Dennis was at her father's in the country at the time, however.

There never was a more brutal, deliberate, cold-blooded murder, and Monroe county justice is apt to mete out to Hill the extreme penalty of the law.

Hill is said to have habitually abused his wife. He last worked for Wheeler, the South Side cigar manufacturer. He was too dissipated to be a valuable hand. He recently applied to Henry Seamon for employment, professing to have reformed, but was drunk at the time and was not hired.

Hill has a brother, William Hill, living at Triadelphia, this county. Mrs. Hill is a sister of Henry Loring, a well known engineer at the Bellaire steel works. She was well known in Bellaire, as here, and the tragedy caused much sorrow among her friends there.

Monroe county has a scaffold, on which Peter King was hanged several years ago in the jail at Woodsfield for the murder and robbery of an old huckster. That crime was not nearly so heinous and revolting as Hill's.

FINALLY.

JOHNSTOWN, PA.

"I was afflicted with a badly sprained and used back various remedies, without relief. Finally I tried St. Jacobs Oil. One or two applications completely cured me."
